APPEARS HITLER FOR ANNEXING OF SUDETEN AREA

Nazi Spokesmen Have Impression Anschluss Inevitable

BENES HOLDS OUT A FRIENDLY HAND

Appeal Gives Warning Clashes Might Threaten Peace of Europe

By The Associated Press.

NURNBERG, Germany, Sept. 10.—Field Marshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering and Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler proclaimed today Germany united, invincible and determined to protect her Germanic brethren — the Sudeten Germans of Czechoslovakia.

Goering: "We consider ourselves the masters of events that are unavoidable . . . We do not want to harm anybody. No nation loves peace more than we do. But we will not stand for injury inflicted upon our brethren."

Hitler: "Germany will stand united, come what may . . . When providence takes me from my people I will hand to the next Fuehrer a country welded by iron bonds."

Propaganda Minister Paul Joseph Goebbels added his voice too to the barrage of Nazi oratory by pouring scorn on "democracy and its offspring, Bolshevism." He included the United States in his indictment of democracy.

Goebbels asserted the Communist international had decided "Czechoslovakia must be another Communist stronghold in Central Europe," charging President Benes owed his election to the Communist vote.

Goering's 90-minute speech—the first to mention Czechoslovakia before the thousands of Nazis gathered in the Nurnberg party congress — easily overshadowed all events of the meeting to date.

Annexation Seems Aim

It came in the midst of talk among Nazi spokesmen to the effect Hitler now demands nothing less than German annexation of the Sudeten German area of Czechoslovakia with its 3,500,000 inhabitants.

No one doubted the overwhelming response given to Hitler in his "capitulate before nobody" speech last night and by 61,000 Hitler youth whom he addressed for 15 minutes this morning was stiffening the Fuehrer's attitude toward Czechoslovakia.

Even if he should, for tactical reasons, agree to full autonomy for the Sudeten Germans and complete fulfillment of Konrad Henlein's 8-point Harlovy Vary program of April 24, Nazis said what he has in mind ultimately is anschluss (union) between Germany and the minority. Henlein is the Sudeten German minority leader.

Men about Hitler speak, with absolute assurance, of autonomy as already in discard and of anschluss as inevitable. To them the only problem is to convince Britain and France they should not go to war about it.

Stresses Might of Nazis

Goering hammered the possibility of war into the consciousness of all who heard him—with references to German might in the air, the strength of fortifications and the nation's ability to withstand blockade "even if war should last 30 years."

Goering's exposition of the Nazi position in the Czechoslovak situation was regarded as so clear, precise and unmistakable that in the Nazi opinion further parleys by the British, who have been seeking a settlement here and in France, seemed superfluous.

Sir Nevile Henderson, the British ambassador, did not see Hitler. There had been reports he was seeking directly or indirectly to tell the Fuehrer of the gravity with which the London government views the situation.

British embassy sources said Sir Nevile had no instructions to try for a contact with Hitler. The envoy intended to leave Nurnberg tomorrow.

Goering in his speech expressed contempt for democracies, especially Britain.

"It would not be a bad idea for the English, before chattering about peace, to establish peace in their Jew state (Palestine) down there," he exclaimed.

Hand of Friendship

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia, Sept. 10.—President Eduard Benes held out the hand of friendship tonight to Nazis Germany and appealed for peace in a broadcast warning that any clashes in the Sudeten German-Czechoslovak dispute

SCHOOLS OUT EARLY DUE TO THE HEAT

As most everyone was thinking wistfully of the delights of air-cooling systems—or Greenland—the temperature crowded the one hundred mark by hitting 99 degrees in the middle of the afternoon Saturday, according to the Sedalia weather bureau.

This was the high point of a "hot" week, with the next highest reading of 97 degrees being recorded on Thursday. During the week the Sedalia schools were dismissed an hour earlier than the regular closing time, because of the heat.

At about 3:30 o'clock on Saturday a weather "break" came when the temperature began to drop, going rapidly down to 82 degrees in less than two hours. A cool breeze moving in with storm clouds brought appreciated relief and later died down, although threatening weather continued.

A heavy shower fell in Hughesville late in the afternoon, accompanied by a fairly high wind. No damage was reported.

EMPHASIS WEEK FOR RELIGION IN CITY SEPT. 18-25

Ministerial Alliance Arranges Series of Special Services

A new undertaking of the Ministerial Alliance in Sedalia this fall will be the "Religious Emphasis Week." All the members of the Alliance are cooperating in the program, which is to be from Sunday to Sunday, September 18 to 25. At the services on the two Sundays most of the ministers are planning to deal with some phases of the themes of the week in their sermons.

Each day during the week, from Monday to Friday, inclusive, there will be cooperative meetings at the Broadway Presbyterian Church, Broadway and Kentucky. The hall of the church will be open from 2 p. m. until 10 p. m., after the evening program. There will be exhibits of many sorts in the hall, and motion pictures will be shown in the basement. The exhibits and films have been gathered from a number of sources and will be arranged to be of interest to all who attend. A special request is being made to any individuals or organizations who possess old or rare Bibles, religious books, or early records of Sedalia and surrounding communities. Those owning such material should sommunicate with the Rev. O. J. Rumpf, sub-chairman in charge of the exhibits, who will select what he has space for.

Programs By Women

Each afternoon from 2:30 to 3:30 there will be a program presented by the women of Sedalia on the general theme, "The Church and the City." At this time each day the women will have charge of special music, a devotional period, and the presentation of particular phases of the relation between religion and the community.

From 7:30 to 8:30 each evening during the week, except Saturday, another meeting will be held, with participation by various groups in the community. Monday night will be designated as "Civic Club Night." Invitations to participate have been extended to all the civic organizations of Sedalia. Tuesday night the churches of the county are especially invited to attend. A speaker from out of town is being arranged for to address the meeting that night. Wednesday night the Ministrial Alliance will present the program, and Thursday night a players' group from the First Methodist Church will give a play they have been preparing. Friday night will be in charge of leading laymen of the Sedalia churches, several of whom will speak on the topic, "Building a Better Sedalia."

The whole program is being sponsored by the Ministerial Alliances and arranged by the permanent committee on the dramatization of the Church's work in the community. Other events are contemplated for later in the year.

SEDALIAN BITTEN BY A BLACK WIDOW SPIDER

John Brown, 1401 East Fifth street, was bitten by a black widow spider early Saturday morning and was seriously ill all day Saturday, but was better Saturday night and Dr. Gordon Stauffacher, his physician stated he believed he would be all right in a few days.

Mr. Brown, employed on PWA road work, was bitten before he left his home Saturday morning. He became ill after he started to work and returned home, where the physician was called.

The spider was caught and is being kept for observation.

MAY TAKE STEPS TO REDUCE OVER LAPPING TAXES

Conference of State Officials Possibly Be Called In Problem

CONCERN EVIDENT OVER REVENUES

Real Burden Falls On The Persons Required To Make Returns

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—(AP)—President Roosevelt possibly may call state officials to a conference on the question of dividing sources of taxation and reducing over lapping levies by other means, it was said in treasury circles today.

Although about as far as ever from a solution of the problem of over lapping taxes, treasury experts said they were greatly concerned with the revenue difficulties of the 49 competing tax collectors and the burden on taxpayers.

Thirty-six states, in addition to the federal government, levy income taxes. Twenty-four states levy sales taxes similar to the federal excises on manufacturers of automobiles, radios and other items. Twenty-one states and the federal government have volume taxes on tobacco, not counting licenses. In the liquor field, especially, all the states and the federal government compete.

One concern of students if the problem is competition of different taxing agencies for the the same types in taxes will dry up those sources.

Burden On Those Who Pay

The real burden is on the persons who pay the taxes. The inter-governmental contest for the tax dollar means primarily more forms to fill out, more bookkeeping to supply figures for the forms, and more taxes to pay to duplicate collectors.

The only sure way of solving the problem, the experts say, is the one least likely of adoption—a constitutional amendment—arbitrarily limiting the tax fields of the states and federal government.

Sharing these same taxes on a fixed basis, unified collection systems and standardizing state taxes through federal action are some of the other solutions urged.

Problem More Urgent

An official spokesman for the treasury declined to say what proposals, if any, the treasury has to offer, but said its highest officials had agreed in recent conferences "a solution must be found because the problem is getting more urgent every day."

Prior to 1900 the state relied almost exclusively on property taxes and the federal government depended on customs duties and a few excises such as the ones on liquor and tobacco.

One of the first important efforts to bring uniformity into state and federal taxes affected inheritance taxes. Since 1926, 47 states—all except Nevada—have adopted similar estate levies because the federal government gives a credit up to 80 per cent of the 1926 federal rates for similar taxes paid states whose laws meet certain requirements.

This crediting device, also led three years ago to induce states to enact unemployment compensation laws, is regarded by the experts as one of the most successful expedients in reducing tax conflicts. However, they add, the objection to the device is that it involves bullying of the states by the federal government.

SOME BICYCLISTS DISREGARD SIGNALS

Many complaints have been received at police headquarters since the start of school of boys and girls riding bicycles running the red traffic lights down town, creating a danger not only to themselves but to the drivers of motor cars.

The bicycle riders, Chief O'Brien states, ride up to a red light and instead of stopping and waiting for the green go signal, dash out across the street, causing motorists, who have the right-of-way to swerve their cars and in some cases having an accident.

"Pick-up" of these "dare-devil" riders have been ordered by Chief O'Brien.

Bothwell Hospital Notes

Miss Eileen Hampton, of Spring Fork, underwent an operation Saturday afternoon.

Miss Louise Snell, of South Quincy avenue, was operated on Saturday morning.

EIGHT CHILDREN IN FAMILY LOSE THEIR TONSILS

DENVER, Sept. 10.—The eight children of Mr. and Mrs. P. J. Hoefler of Matheson, Colo., all lost their tonsils today in a series of operations, one 10 minutes after the other.

Lawrence, 12, grudgingly accepted his father's nomination that he be first because he was the oldest. Leo, three, was next. And then followed the girls, Pauline, 11; Dorothy, 10; Rita, 8; Agnes, 7, and Mary and Martha, five-year-old twins.

RETAIL GROCERS TO MEET MONDAY NIGHT

The regular semi-monthly meeting of the Sedalia Independent Retail Grocers Association will be held at Hotel Bothwell Monday night at 8:00 o'clock. Several important business maters will come for final action, and a full attendance is urged.

TROOPER CORL IN PICKUP OF BOYS ON ORDER BY RADIO

Troopers Report Confession Made To The Theft of Wheat

Three boys whose homes are said to be in Kansas City, Kas., were arrested by State Highway Patrolman Paul E. Corl, just west of the Missouri Pacific State Fair spur on highway 50 Saturday afternoon about 30 minutes after receiving a radio pick-up order for the trio.

The boys gave their names as John David Mills, driver and owner of a 1931 Marmon sedan; Robert David Whiles, and Walter Philman Whitworth. At police headquarters in Sedalia they were questioned, but they did not give the state trooper much information on what they were wanted for.

Late Saturday night Sheriff Lee Williams and Prosecuting Attorney Richard Musser of Warrensburg came to Sedalia and said the three would be charged with petit larceny in connection with stealing of several gunny sacks from the garage of Ralph Lorton, who resides on highway 50 just east of Warrensburg.

They possibly will be charged with the theft of four trailer wheels and tires stolen from a trailer of Mr. Lorton last Tuesday morning. According to Cheriff Williams, three men in a sport coupe drove into the Lorton yard Tuesday morning and removed the trailer wheels, but were not bothered when Mrs. Lorton saw them because she thought her husband had loaned the wheels to the men, however, when her husband arrived home she learned the wheels had been stolen.

Trailed Car Here

Mr. Lorton and Sheriff Williams then trailed the car to Sedalia and lost trace of it here. Mrs. Lorton, however, made up her mind that if any other strangers came into her yard she would take down the license number of the car. This she did about 11:30 o'clock Saturday morning, when the sedan drove into her driveway and the boys jumped out and grabbed an armful of gunny sacks. The number and description of the license and boys tallied very much to those apprehended in Pettis county by Trooper Corl.

The three were taken to Johnson county Saturday night.

In the car was found several sacks filled with wheat which Mills said he had gotten from a farm owned by his father and which was said to be farmed by a share-cropper.

Leary of the boy's statements as to the wheat, Trooper Corl accompanied by Prosecutor Musser took Mills for a ride into Cooper county and after a trip over the country roads north of Syracuse, they came to a farm where Mills said he got the wheat.

Investigation showed no wheat in the vicinity, and when two farmers driving past were stopped, they told the trooper they had been farming the place and that no wheat had been planted for a long time.

Corl then questioned Mills further and the youth admitted he and his companion stole the wheat from a farm west of Otterville. Returning to Otterville, the farm was located and a large barn near the road contained the wheat.

The owner of the farm is was learned is former State Senator J. H. Gunn.

The sacks stolen at Warrensburg had been used by the boys to carry off the wheat.

After the authorities at Warrensburg are through with their prosecution charges of larceny will be filed against the boys in Cooper county, Trooper Corl said late last night.

SYMPHONY WILL START REHEARSALS

The first regular weekly rehearsal of the Sedalia Symphony Orchestra, under the direction of Abe Rosenthal will be held in the Smithton Cotton music room Tuesday night at 7:30. In view of the excellent programs rendered by this organization last season, and the cordial reception given them at each performance by the audience, an outstandingly successful season is expected this year.

The board of directors and the various committees have been busy for the past several weeks making the necessary arrangements. New music has been purchased, several new players have been lined up, and tentative arrangements have been made to secure great artists. Due to the high calibre entertainment provided last year, the committees realize the necessity for keeping up the standard this year, and nothing short of perfection will be accepted. The various sections will be more nearly filled this year than ever before, and Mr. Rosenthal is anxious to get to a good start by having a full attendance at this first rehearsal.

Announcement will be made soon concerning the sale of tickets, and committees to handle this very important phase of the activity will be appointed. Those interested in music are being urged to keep the 1938-39 Symphony season in mind and to be ready for a very interesting series of concerts.

HITLER IS FULLY ADVISED ON THE BRITISH STAND

Warning Explicit On Nazis Starting Any War On Czechs

LONDON, Sept. 10.—(AP)—Great Britain has warned Adolf Hitler himself British neutrality cannot be counted on if Germany should start a major war over Czechoslovakia, it was reported in authoritative quarters tonight.

A British semi-official statement issued tonight declared that as a result of contacts made by Sir Nevile Henderson, British ambassador, at the Nazi Party Congress at Nurnberg, Germany, this week, "there is every reason to feel assued the views of the British government "have been fully conveyed in the proper quarter."

Britain had feared her stand was not being impressed upon Hitler himself, and that, uninformed of the British atitude, he might chart a more aggressive course than otherwise in his eargerly-awaited foreign policy address at Nurnberg Monday.

Tonight's statement, however, left little doubt the Fuehrer now knows where the British government stands. It was evident Sir Nevile was convinced the Germans now know he is not bluffing, and that it is no longer necessary for him to see Chancellor Hitler personally to drive this fact home.

Sir Nevile's principal contacts were with Foreign Minister Joachim Von Ribbentrop, whom he saw yesterday, and Field Marshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering, "second man" of the Nazi Reich.

Crucial Session Monday

No further public move by the Chamberlain government was expected before Monday's crucial cabinet session.

Sir Nevile's assurances failed to satisfy some important diplomatic quarters that Britain had done all she could before Hitler's momentous Monday speech.

There was belief in these quarters, however, that a direct approach to Hitler by Sir Nevile or by the Prime Minister would be fraught with danger in Nurnberg's emotional atmosphere, since anything in the nature of a threat would affront the Fuehrer's dignity.

But the French waited anxiously for Chamberlain's reply to a reported request from President Eduard Benes of Czechoslovakia, transmitted through Paris and said to have been endorsed by the French government, that Britain and France, having forced Prague to make extra concessions to the Germanic minority, should undertake responsibility for any "consequences."

FOCUS ATTENTION TO MARYLAND AND GEORGIA

Chief Interest Directed To Primaries In Those States

INTERVENTION BY THE PRESIDENT

Administration Effort To Unseat Senators Tydings and George

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10—(AP)—The stormy campaigning for senatorial nominations reaches its peak—and a double crisis for President Roosevelt—in the week just ahead.

Nine incumbent senators, all but one Democrats, go up for party judgment on their pleas for nomination to succeed themselves.

Beyond that week lie only senate slate-making by both parties in three states—Wisconsin, New Jersey and New York—to fill in ticket gaps. That will complete the picture to confront voters in 34 states in November, when they elect 35 new senators, or old ones to new six-year terms.

Two Crucial Primaries

The bulk of the week's ticket-making comes on Tuesday, Sept. 13. Seven states, east, west, north and south, pick their candidates that day. But it is on what happens in Maryland the day before and in Georgia the day after, in Democratic races, that crucial developments of the week turn for Mr. Roosevelt. It is there only that he has staked all his popularity and influence as party leader and President on an avowed effort to "keep" his party liberal. It is there only that he has risked new mid-term leadership defeats with the odds seemingly against him.

Beside the interest centering in the Maryland and Georgia Democratic senatorial contests, other events of the crowded political week dwindle to relative unimportance outside the states involved. The President has directly intervened nowhere else. In none of the other states has the issue of party liberalism, which he has forced into the Maryland and Georgia primaries, been drawn sharply enough to catch much national attention.

Other States To Nominate

The other states picking senate tickets during the week are Arizona, Colorado, New Hampshire, Utah, Vermont and Washington, where nominations will be made in primaries, and Connecticut, where party choices will be made in convention.

In two cases of Democrats seeking new terms, involving Senators Adams of Colorado and Lenergan of Connecticut, earlier intimations of open Roosevelt disfavor faded out, as they did in the case of Senator McCarran of Nevada, overwhelmingly renominated despite a dose of silent treatment by the President when he passed through the state on his western trip.

It is on Senator Walter F. George in Georgia and Senator Millard Tydings in Maryland that Mr. Roosevelt has concentrated his effort to oust from the party those he labels conservatives. And it is by the primary results in Maryland and in Georgia that the effects of his attempted purge of the party will be measured.

Prepared For Failure

Administration aides represent the President as having been fully prepared for failure when he decided to attempt to unseat Tydings and George, and as aiming at more distant 1940 objectives.

Even publicity director Michelson of the Democratic National Committee, in his current weekly column, appears to see no prospect of conclusive results in the party primaries due to presidential intervention. Surveying the races at the two-thirds mark, he said:

"By and large, the complexion of the next congress does not appear as likely to be materially changed by the primary results so far or those in prospect.

Whatever may underlie the President's strategy, the first test of the effects of his victory or defeat in the Maryland and Georgia contests will come when the new congress assembles in January. That congress will formulate the concrete campaign issues for 1940.

The president has risked in his crusade against Tydings and George a reaction tending to intensify opposition to his program within the party.

Should his candidates win in either or both states, however, despite a multitude of polls and predictions to the contrary, Roosevelt party prestige would be enormously enhanced.

TOTAL OF 1,634 IN COUNTY WORK ON PROJECTS OF WPA

Exhibit For San Francisco Fair is Being Assembled Here

Sedalians are particularly interested in the dedication of the Missouri building in San Francisco last week by Governor Lloyd C. Stark because the exhibit, to be placed in that building, is being built and assembled in Sedalia.

An exhibit, picturing Missouri as a productive, educational, and recreational state, will be arranged in the large buildings at the Missouri State Fair grounds, and transferred to California. Artists are painting large canvas pictures, the old Missouri cabin, tiff mine, and some of the displays in the highway exhibit at the recent fair, will be part of the showing to be made.

The work is being done under a WPA project, which is one credited to Pettis county.

There are at the present time 1,284 men and 350 women on WPA projects in this county, which covers a number of various kinds of work.

Projects Under Way

Twelve road projects are underway in the county, a large reservoir is being constructed on the quail farm on highway 52, near Windsor; a large number of men are working at the fair grounds, exclusive of the world's fair project; city buildings are all being remodeled and work will start on the cleanup at the old postoffice building Monday. The home of the sexton at Crown Hill cemetery is to be remodeled, work is being done on the incinerator plant, and that work which has been underway at the city hall for some time will be completed in about a week.

Of special interest to Sedalians will be the project to start October 8 at Liberty park, on the lagoon. The elevation is to be changed so that it will hold water, new dams will be built and a twelve foot walk constructed. Other minor jobs are filled by WPA workers.

The greater number of women employes are in the sewing room, but quite a few assist in clerical work in the city and county offices.

CONVENTIONS OF STATE POLITICAL PARTIES TUESDAY

Speculation Fills The Capitol On Successor To Judge Frank

GOVERNOR STARK BE THERE MONDAY

Some Announcement Is Expected Then On Filling Unexpired Term

JEFFERSON CITY, Sept. 10.—Democratic and Republican vanguards came to the capital city tonight to lay the groundwork for Tuesday's party conventions—both of which were given an unexpected twist by the death of Supreme Court Judge William F. Frank.

The heart attack which killed the veteran jurist Friday morning took the last Republican out of state-wide office and left his party with the last-minute problem of putting a strong November candidate in his place. Upon Judge Frank's re-election campaign would have fallen the burden of Republican hopes in November.

Already speculation filled the capital. Some Republicans favored drafting one of the supreme court commissioners—both Laurance M. Hyde and Henry J. Westhues are Republicans — to take up the race. That would give them the talking point of high court experience to put into the campaign against State Senator Albert M. Clark of Richmond, the Democratic nominee.

Keynote Likely Be Same

Regardless of the party selection, the campaign keynote undoubtedly will be the same as it would have been had Frank lived. Clark has the endorsement of Kansas City's T. J. Pendergast and the Republicans made it clear weeks ago they intended to turn the recent Democratic rift over "bossism" to their own purposes by making it the theme of their fight against Clark.

At Judge Frank's campaign opening in Kirkwood party leaders made much of the fact that Clark had the same Pendergast support that went to Judge James V. Billings of Kennett, defeated by Judge James M. Douglas, a Stark appointee, for the Democratic supreme court nomination in the recent primary.

The unexpected passing of the veteran Republican jurist probably will make itself felt in the Democratic convention, too, although the dominant party will not be so directly concerned. The question there will be whom—if anyone—will Gov. Lloyd C. Stark appoint to fill out the four months remaining in Frank's term.

The logical appointment, from a party standpoint, would be the candidate Clark but most observers here say he could not accept the post because his state senate term does not expire until December. If the appointment could go to him it would give him the advantage of making the fall campaign as an incumbent.

Stark will return from his vacation in the West Monday and is expected to make some announcement concerning the appointment then.

Monday— ordinarily a busy "day-before" during party convention week—probably will find the capitol quiet and largely deserted this time. Nearly every elective official and heads of several departments, in addition to the entire supreme court, probably will go to Kirksville for Judge Frank's funeral Monday afternoon.

THE EARTH REFUSES TO BE VICTIMIZED

A little while ago conservation authorities went to the beaver for help. Several colonies of these industrious creatures were planted in various parts of the west, the idea being that their dam-building activities would help in flood and erosion control.

Just how well this will work out is something only the future can tell. But the experiment will be well worth the cost if it impresses on us the queer, fascinating way in which nature maintains her balance. For it is mortally easy for blundering, thoughtless man to upset that balance, and he usually does so at his own cost.

Eighteen years ago, Mr. Carr recalls, three pairs of beavers were released in Bear Mountain State Park, which is some 40 miles north of New York City. By now there are several hundred of their descendants, scattered in more than 60 colonies spread over a 30-mile radius.

Now the point is that because this park area has beavers, it has various other forms of wild life which it did not have before. The beaver ponds, for instance, have furnished new breeding grounds for various kinds of fish. Wood ducks, which were formerly listed as extremely scarce, are now common. The rare pileated woodpecker has also increased—because the standing trees killed by the flooding of the ponds provide him with his favorite stamping ground.

But that is only part of it. Sooner or later, every beaver pond is abandoned. Its dam goes to pieces and its water drains out. But the pond's bed is composed of rich, fertile soil, carried downstream as silt and dropped when the beaver dam backed up the water. And where the pond was, a rich meadow comes to life.

Reeds, grasses, and bushes spring up; before long, trees take root. Here is "cover" for songbirds and game birds; a little later, such creatures as muskrats, raccoons and skunks find the spot a good feeding ground. As the number of such thickets increases, deer begin to appear.

All of this is a fascinating example of the way nature's balance works.

And the story points its own moral. Nature's balance provides the environment in which we ourselves have to live. Only if we understand how it works, and make certain that we do not disturb it more than we need to, can we enjoy earth's yield to the full. When we exploit nature too ruthlessly, we ourselves are the ultimate losers.

BOYISH NOTIONS

The things planes do at the National Air Races enable the men in the aircraft industry to take a few new measurements of aviation progress with a degree of accuracy. The average man reads stories of the show and takes measurements largely with his emotions. If something in the news from the recent races at Cleveland gave you a feeling of the world having suddenly shot ahead a generation or so, and you can't remember what it was, maybe it was a casual interview with Mrs. Rudy Kling.

Mrs. Kling is the widow of the flyer who won the Thompson Trophy in 1937, She runs a garage business in Lemont, Ill., and she has a son, Robert.

"Robert," Mrs. Kling remarked to a reporter, "wants to be a farmer now. But he is only 11. I will get him out of that notion. The Klings will be winning trophies again. You'll see."

Who can remember the old days when mother's quaint concern was to ease little Johnny out of the crazy notion that he was going to leave the farm and become an aviator?

That whoosh you may have heard was the sound of time passing.

CUPID AND OIL

Speaking of causes for alarm:

There is a road, among others, in Buchanan County, Missouri, which is sorely in need of oiling, and has been sorely in need of it for about a dozen years. The housewives who live along the road have been getting more and more tired during those dozen years of having to dust every time they turned around. Efforts of a conventional nature to get the county to lay some oil have been without success. So, 50 of the women have just notified the county that they're all going to sue their husbands for divorce unless the matter is straightened out within a certain time.

Stunts like this spread like measles in a third-grade classroom, in this odd and imitative country, and it's no fun speculating on the epidemic those 50 Missouri housewives have probably started.

Look out for divorce actions angling for lower taxes and cheaper public transportation; wholesale courtship strikes for free marriage licenses; threats to marry; raise large families, and throw them on relief unless government jobs are forthcoming; and marriage strikes for garbage collections after every meal.

The one ray of hope that appears is the possibility that this silly season will come to its close before the thing has gone too far. Pray for an early winter.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Drew Pearson and Robert S. Allen

WASHINGTON — Nearly two years have passed since Rex Tugwell left Washington, but in another embodiment his spirit goes marching on. The things he battled for are being advanced by another man—who doesn't make people see red.

Milburn Lincoln Wilson has the same ideas which, under the Tugwell banner, were "dangerous" and "radical." He, too, was a college professor, and he uses the same phrases that made the Senate hate his predecessor—phrases like "the culture of technology" and "a new life pattern."

Yet Wilson holds the post and draws the salary that the Senate grudgingly gave Tugwell—Under Secretary of Agriculture at $10,000—and nobody writhes or foams at the mouth. The reason is that though Wilson has his vision in the stars he has his roots in the soil.

You simply can't get worried listening to this sun-tanned agronomist, who has been a tenant farmer in Nebraska, a homesteader in Montana, and whose academic researchers have dealt principally with dry farming, wheat consumption, and the handling of big-team hitches.

Some of Tugwell's old enemies might get alarmed about Wilson, too, if they knew he was a devotee of a British savant named Merett and spent a lot of time reading Merett's books on anthropology. They might feel very uncomfortable to hear him speak of "the normal habitat of homo sapiens," or to learn that in religion he is "a cross between a Quaker, a Unitarian, and a scientific humanist."

But his talk is the comfortable colloquy of a farmer leaning across a rail fence. He even lets rural grammar creep into his speech. He reaches into his pocket for some change and clinks it meditatively as he says:

"Got to take some of the treacherous hazard out of farming. First there's a drought that burns up everything, then along come (sic) a heavy crop and the bottom drops out of the market."

Tugwell Team

This man whom Henry Wallace calls "M. L." made a team with Tugwell in shaping the agriculture platform of candidate Roosevelt in 1932. Rex and M. L. came to Hyde Park while Wallace was still publishing his farm jounral in Des Moines. It was Wilson who developed the "voluntary domestic allotment plan" which became the foundation of the AAA.

He had other radical ideas to sell to the new presidential candidate. He thought the Government should "resettle" men whom industry had thrown out of work—set them up with a house and a patch of land, so they could get their living from the soil, as their fathers had done before them. He had heard about this set-up from the Quakers, who were already resettling unemployed miners in West Virginia, and he called it the "subsistence homestead."

Accordingly, his first big job under the New Deal had nothing to do with wheat farming or the Department of Agriculture. He was made Director of the Division of Subsistence Homesteads under Ickes in the Interior Department. It was this division which built the projects at Arthurdale and Red House, West Virginia; at Crossvil, Tennessee; and later at Hightstown, New Jersey.

Through Mrs. Roosevelt's interest in Arthurdale, Wilson came to know the First Lady, and he has a deep personal regard for her. He says she is personification of neighborliness—that democratic good-will which is the priceless heritage of the farm.

This touches a point where Wilson the scientist meets M. L. the humanitarian. Its symbol is Turkey Creek in southwest Iowa.

Turkey Creek

Wilson was born on a farm in Cass County, Iowa, 53 years ago. As he grew up on that farm, he swam and fished in Turkey Creek, and he crossed it every day on his way to school. It was then crystal clear and in places as deep as 30 feet. Today the groves of shade trees are dying, the fields are giving way to erosion, and Turkey Creek is a muddy trickle.

Similarly, there has been human erosion. The neighborliness he knew when the town of Atlantic seemed a remote principality ten miles away has given way before the machine age. The automobile, the movies, and farm machinery have come to Turkey Creek, but gone is the abundant life of kindliness which Wilson felt among his neighbors when he was a boy.

"Land has become of secondary importance. Land and the home have given ground before the movies, the radio, the five-and-dime stores and the Susie-Q. Our civilization has made tremendous mechanical advances, but these have grown in the last quarter century from an infant to an obsession. We are dependent on the machine rather than on ourselves."

This might be the plaint of a sentimentalist who could not keep pace with the times. But M. L. Wilson is looking ahead, not behind. He has a contribution to make to the machine age—namely, life without stomach ulcers.

"Farmers don't suffer from nervous diseases," he says. "Agriculture, according to the anthropologist, is the type of life best suited to homo sapiens. We like it. We take to it. We are stronger and happier with our hands in the soil. We don't throw stones and gas bombs if we live on a farm.

"If democracy is to survive in the United States, the farm is the saving element. But it must be agriculture under a new life pattern.

"There must be a combination of industry and agriculture. The industrial age is here to stay. But it brings diseases—economic diseases of all sorts. We've got to modify it, decentralize it, with subsistence homesteads supplemented by the cash income from industry."

"New Life"

This is the "new life pattern" which made trouble for Tugwell three or four years ago. But the pattern is still here, and the cloth has already been cut from it. Last week the Farm Security Administration—successor to Tugwell's Resettlement Administration—announced that a private hosiery company would operate silk-throwing plants and hosiery mills at Cumberland Homesteads, Skyline Homesteads, and Red House Farms.

This is a victory for the new life pattern cutters. If this part of the pattern were left unfinished, the homsteads would collapse in insolvency. There would be plenty of corn and tomatoes, but no cash for the baby's shoes. This was the burning question about Arthurdale—would any industry settle there to give jobs that the mines had taken away?

M. L. Wilson is pleased with the victory, but he is keeping quiet about it. He does not want the limelight or the role of a prima donna, for his plans reach far ahead, so far that he cannot see them fulfilled in his lifetime. But at least he will keep on pushing them.

When Massasoit, the great sachem of the Wampanoags, and friend of the Colonists sold what is now the site of Brockton, Massachusetts, to these early settlers, the deed was negotiated with Captain Miles Standish. The consideration was seven coats, nine hatchets, eight hoes, twenty knives, four moose skins, and ten and one-half yards of cotton, all of a total value of about thirty dollars.

President James Monroe, on January 13, 1819, ordered the Surveyor-General of the United States to reserve and lay out a town to be called Decatur, in honor of the distinguished American Naval Officer, Stephen Decatur. The name was derived from the "Society of Cincinnati," an organization of Revolutionary and French Army officers, formed after the war to cement the friendship thus made. George Washington was the first President, but later withdrew from the society, and urged his friends to do likewise, because of unjust criticism that Society's purpose was to form foreign alliances.

Pioneer Cemetery, just back of Kansas university, on Mt. Oread, holds many memories of the Quantrill massacre on August 21, 1863, when this notorious guerilla of Civil War renown, sacked and burned Lawrence, Kansas, killing 143 and seriously wounding 30 of its citizens.

For a long period it was called "Quantrill's Cemetery. Here lie buried many of those who lost their lives in this raid, among whom were a number of the earliest settlers of Kansas. A number of the tombstones bear words to this effect. Eighteen graves have headstones giving name of persons buried there, each also inscribed "9th Wisconsin Infantry." The last burial in this famous burial ground, was that of Mary Jane, wife of Charles Stearns, who spent 46 years in Colorado Territory and who was buried there in 1864.

It was at Cassville, the County Seat of Barry County, Missouri, in October, 1861, the Governor Claibourne Jackson legislature met and in an upper room of the original brick courthouse, the members of the State Senate and Lower House passed the articles of Secession in an effort to take Missouri from the Union to join the Confederacy. Cassville was named for General Lewis Cass.

MIND YOUR MANNERS

Test your knowledge of correct social usage by answering the following questions, then checking against the authoritative answers below:

1. If you have a date, should you let him take you to a party given by a stranger to you?
2. Should a girl accept a date to meet a man at a bar?
3. Is it good taste for her to carryon a conversation with the bartender?
4. Does being a good listener mean saying nothing at all?
5. Is it good form to make derogatory remarks about yourself, such as, "Don't I look awful? My hair is terrible?"

What yould you do if

You are at a cocktail party and your host keeps plying you with more than you want to drink—

(a) Make each drink last a long time?
(b) Say, "I don't drink very much, you know?"
(c) Say, Thank you. No more?"

Answers

1. Not unless the hostess invited you. A cocktail party is an exception.
2. No. Let him call for her elsewhere.
3. No.
4. No, adroitly drawing out the other person.
5. No, for hearer is forced to deny it.

Best "What Would You Do" solution—(a), for (c) likely won't affect an insistent host.

SERIAL STORY

BY CHARLES B. PARMER

Yesterday: Through the old notes of Sandy Gordon, Linda learns what a thoroughbred Bruce Radford is. She calls him but learns he has left home for quite a spell.

CHAPTER IX

LINDA was awakened next morning by a woman's strong voice calling:

"Telegram for Miss Gordon? Yes, suh, here she is." Callie gave the receiver to Linda, who had sprung into the hallway, her heart pounding. Could this be from Bruce?

The station agent in the nearest town was saying: "—a telegram, and he wants an answer."

"Read it, please." Suppose Bruce was asking her—

But it wasn't from Bruce. It read:

"MAN O' WAR BOBS INTO LIMELIGHT AGAIN STOP WILL YOU GO TO FARAWAY FARMS GET EXCLUSIVE INTERVIEW WITH HORSE STOP THIRTY-FIVE HUNDRED SNAPPY WORDS, NOTHING TRITE STOP WHAT DOES HE THINK OF IMPROVING BREED OF MEN TO KEEP STEP WITH IMPROVING BREED OF HORSES STOP RUSH ANSWER."

The name signed was "Moss." The Moss who had offered to make her staff writer on his magazine.

"I'll take your answer, Miss Gordon."

"The answer is—" she hesitated, said: "Just one word. Yes."

* * *

SHE made her decision in a flash: but she wasn't running out! She was staying here. She'd cover this one assignment; that was all Moss asked. He'd pay her well; and she was going to need plenty of cash. You don't put a horse into training on hope alone. Then, too, it would do no harm to keep her writing hand in—

Uncle Sandy looked up inquiringly when she returned to the table. "Uncle Sandy, I'm leaving for a week or two."

He glared at her. "Thought you came to stay."

"I did. But this is a chance to pick up some cash."

"How?"

She laughed. "By making Man o' War talk."

He leaned back, hands on table. "What you talking about?"

She explained. "Of all the fool ideas!" He shook his head.

"Of course, it's foolish," she said, "but it's the sort of yarn race-mad folk will read, Uncle Sandy. That is, if I deliver the goods."

She got up. "I'll make a hundred or two."

H-m-m! There was money in this writing business.

* * *

LINDA stayed at a hotel in Lexington that night; the next morning—by appointment—drove out to Mr. Samuel Riddle's Faraway Farms, a few miles north of Lexington.

The magic of her magazine's name got her special attention. Though the hundreds of daily sight-seers were arriving, she was given the exclusive services of Man o' War's gray-haired groom, the courtly Will Harbutt.

Old Will went into his spiel: told of the stallion, now 21 years old, being bought from August Belmont for $5000 as an untried 2-year-old. "—an' he done made a million dollars in winnin' races, stud fees, and sale of his chillun. But fust—"

First, Will insisted on showing two of Man o' War's great sons, Crusader and American Flag. He pointed to an empty stall: "That's jes' waitin' for War Admiral to come home and be with his pappy. An' hear"—with a sweep of his arm he pointed to a fourth stall in the immaculate stable: "Heah is Man o' War hisself!"

The Negro walked into the stall, closed the lower half of the door, said: "Come here, Red!"

Linda saw a flaming chestnut turn in the stall, approach the door. Will threw an arm around his neck. Said:

"Listen, Miss, this here be Man o' War, the greatest horse in all de wide worl'. As 3-year-old he run in 11 races, win 'em all, an' bust track records north an' south. Got so other horses skeered to run ag'in him. Once only one would come out on de track—that was Hoodwink; and old Red, he beat him by a hundred lengths.

"As a 2-year-old he start 10 times. He lose one race—an' de jockey what rode him is walkin' now.

"Man o' War's chillun be the greates' o 'em all: there be Genie, Scapa Flow, Mars, Crusader, American Flag, Clyde Van Deusen—he win the Kentucky Derby; Edith Cavell, Bateau; War Admiral—he win the Derby, too; and about 300 others—"

"Does Man o' War ever talk, Will?" Linda asked seriously.

"Talk? Why, Miss, he writes letters! Yes, ma'am. He done writ a half dozen to his son, War Admiral. Ain't you, Red?

"'Member when they call off that Seabiscuit match race? 'Cause Seabiscuit had the rheumatiz or sumpin'? An' then they didn't let War Admiral run in the Suburban, 'cause his trainer think the track too sloppy—an' ev'body git mad? Then next Monday War Admiral, he start in the Queens County Handicap at Aqueduct?"

YES, Linda remembered. She had seen that race—sitting by Monte Hill's side. Monte was rooting for the Admiral that day. "'Member how the crowd hiss an' boo War Admiral—'cause he didn't run ag'in Snark in the Suburban? An' they all prayin' for Snark to win—"

"I wasn't, Will," she told him. "Lord bless you, ma'am—course not! Anyway, old Red, he hear that hissin', and he go half-crazy. He writ out a telegram, an' he sent it to War Admiral, and they give it to him jes' as he get to the post. It say:

"'Son, yo' pappy remin's you you done won 10 races straight—make this 'leven. Never min' that crowd o' pore whites booing you—you is quality—go out an' win, son—win for yo' ol' man.'

"And' he did! War Admiral, when Snark come alongside him, he say, git back in the rear—where you belong—you can't pass quality folks, an' Snark, he git back, an' War Admiral he win for his pappy—almos' bus' a track record. Red writes him a long letter dat night. He say, 'Son, yo' pappy mighty proud. You win even wid dem pore white trash hissin' you. We's improvin' de horse breed; hit's time humans improve theirselves—"

Linda had it! Unknowingly, old Will was giving Linda the backbone of her story.

"Now, Miss, we turns him out—"

Man o' War, a trifle pot-bellied now, but still majestic in bearing, stomped into his Blue Grass paddock. Will Harbutt and Linda followed.

Someone was running up behind them. Linda stopped as a hand caught her arm. She wheeled around. It was Bruce Radford. "Hullo, there!" he called, a broad smile on his face, as though nothing had passed between them the night before.

"Oh, hullo, Bruce!"

He held her hand an instant. "Look here," he seemed slightly puzzled. "Why did you come home? To visit Mr. Sandy, to buy a racing stable, or—or—"

"Or what, Bruce?"

"Or to scoop me? I'm here to interview Man o' War." He grinned shrewdly, "What's your business, young lady?"

CLAIMS KINSHIP WITH CORRIGAN

Andrew C. Corrigan, of St. Louis, who claims kinship to the famous Douglas Corrigan, was removed from Missouri Pacific passenger train No. 5 Saturday afternoon because he was creating somewhat of a disturbance on the train all the way from Pacific, Mo.

Corrigan was lodged in the city jail and at 5 o'clock appeared before Judge Charles W. Bente, in police court and pleaded guilty to being intoxicated. He was fined $5 and given a stay on the fine, because he had no money, but had a ticket which will carry him on to Leavenworth, Kansas, where he expects to enter the government hospital.

In discussing his relationship, Corrigan told of being the famous aviator's cousin, first cousin to be exact, he claimed. He told of how his father came to the United States from Dublin, Ireland, as did the father of Douglas, while his father stayed in Philadelphia and worked through the north and his brother worked south and ended up in California, the father of Douglas.

"He may be famous, but he is just like me, another Irishman, and a darn good one at that. If Douglas said he flew the wrong way you can bet your bottom boots that he didn't lie, 'cause us Corrigans, well we just stick together," said "Cousin" Andrew.

Corrigan certainly had the ear marks of Douglas and a family resemblance is outstanding. His natural Irish wit certainly stood out in his talk with the police officers in Sedalia.

RECEPTION AT HUGHESVILLE IS GIVEN TEACHERS

Interesting Talks Given On Proposed Bond Issue For School

The teachers reception held at the Hughesville High School Friday night was well attended.

The social committee of the community club Mesdames Harold Conway, J. O. Kincheloe, D. R. Powell and Henry Nagel, worked hard and faithfully to carry out their well made plans. Refreshments served were cake and punch.

During the business meeting and program of the community club, C. F. Scotten and C. A. Greene gave many interesting facts and figures about the bond issue to be voted on Tuesday at Hughesville. They brought out the point very forcibly that regardless of whether the bond issue carries or not the tax payers of the Hughesville district will help pay the cost of government projects. In event passage fails it was stated other districts will receive all the benefits. However even if the issue carries there will be no increase in taxes for three years and after that only a small increase.

There was also no doubt left in the mind of the listeners that the present building will no longer pass inspection by the state school building inspector and that if the government help is not accepted the taxpayers will have to assume the whole cost of building.

Much credit was given the school board members, Ed Callis, Harold Conway, Charley Kinder, Das McClure, Dwight Lowrey and Willard Stevens for the economical way in which they have handled the school funds.

At the close of the business meeting the chairman, Mrs. Conway introduced the superintendent Glenn R. Snider. Mr. Snider has been a member of the faculty seven years and superintendent six years.

He received his masters degree this summer at Ann Arbor, Michigan.

Mr. Snider then introduced the teachers, Misses Evelyn Miller, Lorraine Kincheloe and Mildred Rages, Mrs. Lon R. Slaton and Mr. Kenneth Randolph. This is the fifth year for Miss Rages and the second for Miss Kincheloe. Mrs. Slaton is substituting for the remaining grade school teacher.

The musical numbers on the program were two vocal solos, "Ah! Sweet Mystery of Life" and "Indian Love Call" by Miss Lorraine Kincheloe accompanied by Miss Mildred Rages.

Traveling through Indiana, Illinois and Ohio Mr. and Mrs. Neal found extra fine corn, they said. They visited Washington, D. C., the White House, Arlington cemetery, and other interesting places there, went to Alexandria, Va., and from New Jersey by way of George Washington bridge and in New York City were taken to the outstanding places of interest.

Parents of a Son

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Siron of R. F. D. No. 4, are parents of a son, whom they have named Kenneth Carl.

KIDNEY HEALED

A patient was very ill with a high fever. A prior doctor's diagnosis was, "possibly typhoid fever." He had had a laboratory urinalysis made which did not reveal any pus. I was called for my opinion and from chiropractic method of analysis concluded that there was an abscessed kidney; evidently the urine tested was from the good kidney. Within four hours after the first treatment, pus appeared in the urine in large amounts proving the correctness of chiropractic methods of analysis. The patient got well and has had no other attack in nine years. I refer to old cases because it shows that they do stay well.

Dr. Roy M. Keller

The kidneys, as well as other organs of the body, are influenced by the nerves; disease is due to a disturbance in the nerve supply. We chiropractors simply remove the cause of the disturbance which is usually at the point in the spine where the nerves emerge. Many different forms of kidney disease respond to chiropractic treatment.

Tuberculosis of the kidneys is uncommon but in laboratory experiment it can be produced in 100 per cent of tests by irritation of certain nerves. If irritation of nerves cause it, removal of the irritation is first necessary to cure it. Chiropractic is the ONLY healing method which looks for and removes the DIRECT CAUSE.

Divorce to Former Sedalia Girl From an Heir to Millions

"Irving I. Ingraham, Los Angeles heir to watch millions, loved strawberries sprinkled with powdered sugar and drenched with cream," states the September 2 issue of the Los Angeles Herald and Express.

"Last April 2, his bride of 24 days, Mae Bower Ingraham, one time Mack Sennett bathing beauty, prepared such a dish for breakfast," continues the article. "But when Ingraham came down stairs he said he 'felt bad' and thought he would take a walk around the block.

"Mrs. Ingraham has never seen him since ,and later learned he had gone to Honolulu."

Mrs. Ingraham is a former Sedalian, the former Lulu Mae Bower.

The newspaper article continues: "This was the story she told in Superior Judge Dudley S. Valentine's court where she obtained a divorce decree.

"Mrs. Ingraham, who played William Farnum's little sister and Ruth Roland's daughter in silent films, testified her husband was intoxicated most of the time during their brief marriage.

"'He nagged just about continuously, she said, 'When he left home he left me no money. I tried frantically to find him. His mother telephoned me that he had a nervous breakdown; that he was at his brother's home and I couldn't see him.

"'But later I found out he had been seen many places and had had no breakdown.'

"The wife said Ingraham's cruel treatment and demonstrations of jealousy embarrassed her and inpaired her health.

"Her testimony was corroborated by her Negro butler-chauffeur."

"Mrs. Ingraham's attorney, Ruben Licker, informed Judge Valentine the couple had entered into a property agreement whereby Mrs. Ingraham receives their fashionable Willshire district apartment house, the Mae Irving apartments, at 510 South Kenmore avenue. She also receives a cash settlement."

The Uptown theatre is proud to present Rudolph Valentino, America's favorite movie star of yesteryear in his best picture, "Son of the Sheik" starting today for a 3 day engagement.

George Fitzmaurice, director of Valentino's "Son of the Sheik" the celebrated E. M. Hull story of desert life and love, opens a three day engagement today at the Uptown theatre, by popular demand.

"Of all the hundreds of players I have directed, from the era of the silents to the present day," says Fitzmaurice, "I have never met anyone who had a more sensitive and impressionable nature. This gave Rudy an uncanny peculiarity of being completely dominated by whatever character he happened to be playing at the time.

"Son of the Sheik" offers ample opportunity for Rudy's inherent feeling for beauty. The flowing, picturesque robes of the desert apparel, the reckless riding of battling Moors and Arabs, and the beautiful love scenes against a background of the hot sands and moonlight skies of the Great Sahara, furnish a feast for the imagination as well as the eye.

Valentino plays the dual role of father and son, with Vilma Banky in the part of his dancing slave girl sweetheart, Yasmin. Agnes Ayres, another star of not so long ago, will be seen as the sheik' wife. The only additions to the original version of "Son of the Sheik" are dramatic sound effects and a brilliant orchestral score.

The companion feature is "You Are Only Young Once," another of the favorite and popular Judge Hardy's Family series. This time the family with Lewis Stone, Mickey Rooney, Cecilia Parker and Fay Holden, leave for a much needed vacation and have the time of their lives, until misfortune makes it necessary that each one of them work for the rest of the family's welfare. It's packed with humor, humaness and excitement. Bring the entire family. They will all enjoy it.

Alice Faye, His Choice, Stars in Irving Berlin's Hit

Irving Berlin was the man who voted Alice Faye Hollywood's best song-slugger.

Irving Berlin should know whereof he speaks; for three decades ago the master of American melody himself was a craftsman in the modern version of the minnesingers. It was Berlin's early career at the beginning of the century that started him on the path to writing his own tunes.

The years have been brilliant with Berlin's own melodies since then—and his estimation of Alice Faye's prowess as a "hit singer" today comes as praise from the highest authority.

Yet, as if to lend force to Berlin's opinion, a forceful example is the 20th Century-Fox mail room in Hollywood.

No star in the Cinema City is deluged with as many manuscripts. Every amateur songsmith in the world seems to want Miss Faye to launch his or her brainchild into the musical world.

"There's something about the way Alice projects a song that spells immediate success for it," was the way Cole Porter put it when he concurred in Irving Berlin's verdict.

But in her current starring role, Alice repays an old benison. It was Irving Berlin who named her the greatest song plugger.

It also was Irving Berlin who, through 20th Century-Fox, has given the the film fans a graphic history of our turbulent times since he first wrote "Alexander's Ragtime Band" for an exhilarated world to shout from the housetops nearly thirty years ago.

Berlin "plugged" among 600 hits of his own creation such songs as "Alexander's Ragtime Band," "Ragtime Violin," "International Rag," "When The Midnight Choo Choo Leaves For Alebam'," "Everybody's Doin' It," "When I Lost You," "In My Harem," "This Is The Life," "For Your Country and My Country," "In The Y. M. C. A.," "Oh, How I Hate to Get Up In the Morning," "We're On Our Way to France," "A Pretty Girl Is Like a Melody," "Say It With Music," "Everybody Step," "Some Sunny Day," "Pack Up Your Sins," "What'll I Do?," "Lazy," "All Alone," "Remember," "Blue Skies," "Marie," "Heat Wave," "Easter Parade," and "Cheek to Cheek."

These are all heard insinuating their reminiscent melodies into the stirring story of "Alexander's Ragtime Band," which opens a five day engagement today at the Liberty Theatre.

With such stars as Tyrone Power, Alice Faye and Don Ameche, and with a brilliant cast headed by Ethel Merman and Jack Haley, Berlin's melodies will be augmented by his two latest compositions—written especially for the powerful story:

"My Walking Stick" and "Now It Can Be Told."

And Mr. Berllin's songs will now be plugged by one who already has won his seal of approval . . . Alice Faye.

FROM the start, Jerry fitted smoothly into the singing assignment that once had been Stella's. Pretty, vivacious and possessed of an arresting voice, she gained rapidly in popularity. She, too, had fallen in love with Alexander. But he could not forget his love for Stella.

AS its popularity mounted, and the steady flow of gold increased, Alexander's Ragtime Band extended its repertoire until it was virtually a show in itself. With Jerry demonstrating remarkable talents as a dancer, Alexander staged some of the most spectacular numbers ever witnessed on the Continent. The "Devil Dance," featuring Jerry set a new entertainment pace. Word of the band's popularity came back to America, and Alexander was deluged with offers from stage, screen and radio. It was a far cry from the old days at "Dirty Eddie's" bar room.

BACK in America, Stella had not been able to recover from the wreckage she had made of life. As Alexander's star rose on one Continent, hers steadily descended on another. Her money gone, unable to undertake a comeback on Broadway, she was forced to sing in small-time beer gardens as a means of livelihood. She was practically back where she had started twenty years before. Broadway forgets easily, and only Charlie Dwyer faithfully kept alive his memories of the glamorous girl whom he had lost.

IN time, Alexander and the band returned to America. In a broadcasting studio, Alexander encountered Charlie. And there, for the first time, learned that Stella had divorced Charlie — and, more important —why. His hopes of again having her reawakened, Alexander impetuously enlisted Charlie in a search to find her. But finding a one-time star is not easy. (To be continued)

Saul: Moral Failure

Text: I Samuel 10:21-25; 15:20-23; 31:3-6

By WILLIAM E GILROY, D. D.
Editor of Advance

The story of Saul, the King of Israel, is one of the most dramatic and impressive in all the records of human tragedy. Nor is anything of the power and impressiveness of its lost in the telling of the story in the Old Testament. All the details are brought out with full strength in the picture of a mighty man, called to a great task with a supreme responsibility, going down to defeat and suicide, a strong man overcome, because he allowed himself to be swept away and conquered by evil passions and jealousy.

Despite Samuel's great deliverance of Israel, the people were discontented. Samuel was, first of all, a religious leader. The people wanted a king. They forgot what Samuel had accomplished for them; and they thought that if they had a king, they would be in a stronger position.

Samuel finally yielded to their clamor, and they began the task of selecting the man who was to be king. Tribes first of all were taken by lot, and from the tribe of Benjamin in the taking of lot by families, the ultimate choice came upon Saul, the son of Kish.

When they sought him, they could not find him because he had hidden himself away among the baggage. When they brought him out, he stood head and shoulders above the people. When the people saw him, Samuel said, "See ye him whom Jehovah hath chosen, that there is none like him among all the people?" All the people shouted and said, "Long live the king!" Could any man be called to a great position and privilege under more favorable cirmustances or with greater hope of success? Moreover, Saul justified the choice. He proved himself a mighty man of valor.

There was no question concerning his strength, his courage, or his capacity for leadership.

* * *

But there came the day when the Philistine giant, Goliath, came forth and defied the armies of Israel.

The strong men of Israel were afraid, and none were ready to accept the giant's challenge, but there was a young lad from Bethlehem, a shepherd boy, who was not in the fighting armies, but who had gone down to bring food to his older brothers. When he heard of what was happening, he decided to go out against Goliath.

He spurned the armor offered him, and after selecting a few smooth stones he met Goliath with his sling. With steady aim, he struck the giant in a vulnerable spot. It was a mighty triumph, and history has recognized the courage and prowess of this young David, the giant-killer.

When the armies of Israel came back victorious, the seeds of jealousy were sown in Saul's heart, as the women met the returning hero singing in praise of David and his deed, "Saul hath slain his thousands, and David his ten thousands."

It was rather a foolish and thoughtless discrimination. Possibly any man in Saul's place would have resented it. But there began in that hour the destruction and downfall of this mighty man.

The kindliest thought of Saul is that he was affected by some form of insanity; for even when in a great rage he would seek to take the life of David; after the rage had passed, he was sorry for his act and he showed great bursts of magnanimity.

"I have played the fool," said Saul concerning himself, and there could be no more accurate moral judgment of a man against himself.

MEETINGS BE HELD IN THE COUNTY ON AAA WHEAT PLAN

Purpose Is To Discuss Loans, Insurance and Quotas

A series of meetings are to be held in Pettis county between September 10 and 16 to explain the AAA Wheat Plan as set forth in the 1939 Agricultural Program, according to an announcement by J. A. DeJarnette, chairman, Pettis County Agricultural Conservation Committee.

The purpose of these meetings is to discuss the wheat situation; wheat loans; wheat insurance; marketing quotas on wheat; how the national, state, county and farm wheat acreage allotments were established; as well as the benefits to be receivd by seeding within the allotment.

The seriousness of the wheat problem at the present time cannot be over-emphasized, states Mr. DeJarnette. We are faced this year with one of the largest wheat surpluses in history. The present supply is 1,147,000,000 bushels of which we can expect to use and export only about 753,000,000 bushels. This will leave a carry-over of nearly 400,000,000 bushels next summer before we begin to harvest the 1939 crop.

The only other years since the world war when the supply exceeded 1,100,000,000 bushels were in 1930, 1931, and 1932 when the wheat prices were the lowest in our history.

In each of the years 1937 and 1938, farmers in the United States planted approximately 81,000,000 acres of wheat. To guard against a complete collapse of prices, the Farm Act set up a wheat allotment of 55,000,000 acres for the seeding this fall. Each individual farmer who produces wheat has a share of this national allotment.

Received Allotments

Wheat farmers in Pettis county have received their wheat acreage allotments within the past few days. The wheat grower who stays within his wheat allotment will be able to qualify for the wheat payment if he also complies with the other acreage allotments of the 1939 Agricultural Program. The wheat payments, though not defintely determined will include a payment of 16 to 18 cents a bushel for compliance and an adjustment of 9 to 12 cents a bushel making a total wheat payment of around 26 to 30 cents a bushel on the normal yield of the alloted acres.

All wheat growers are urged to attend the meeting most convenient to them and learn of the benefits which can be derived through the AAA Wheat Program. A schedule of the meetings in townships, place and date follow:

Sedalia Lady Tells Of Good Results KruGon Gave Her

Mrs. Alex Aarons Had an Awful Aching Over Her Body; Sick Headaches Added to Her Discomfort; Back Pained Too; KruGon Wasted No Time In Eliminating Impurities From Her System

Many medicines have been introduced here in Sedalia in past years but today many local people realize that KruGon is DIFFERENT in its action on the system . . . bringing relief to many who had never before been able to get results from any medicine or treatment they had tried. Read what Mrs. Alex Aarons, 1701 South Stewart Street, Sedalia, a well known and respected local lady, said recently in praising the action of this new remedy to the KruGon Man who is daily introducing and explaining the action of KruGon to crowds of local people at the McFarland and Robinson Drug Co., 104 West Main Street:

"All my friends remark how I look and act like a different person in recent weeks and I am glad to tell them all credit is due to the action of KruGon," said Mrs. Aarons, "I had never been a sickly or ailing person until about ten years ago and my health problems began all at once. I bent over one day to lace my shoe and I fell over backwords with a pain in my back. For over a year I was in a miserable condition, could not look up without getting dizzy, my body was filled with aches and pains and sick headaches were a constant discomfort. Here of late I had a continual achy feeling through my shoulders and I also had an awful soreness under by left ribs extending around to my back. I tried in vain to locate the source of my health troubles but nothing seemed to be able to help me. I was rapidly becoming discouraged with my condition and don't know what I would have done if it had not been for this laxative-tonic formula, KruGon."

"My system had accumulated so much poison and impurities from improper elimination over the past several years it is a wonder I could get around at all . . . but KruGon wasted no time in correcting that," continued Mrs. Aarons, "My bowels were regulated easily, soon those impurities were eliminated and that tired, achy feeling began to leave me. Now I feel like an entirely different person and all my friends and acquaintances remark how well I look. All that soreness has been driven from my body and I can get around with ease, do my work and feel fine. I don't hesitate to give KruGon full credit for it has been such a blessing to me."

The KruGon Man is daily meeting the local public at the McFarland and Robinson Drug Co., 104 West Main Street, Sedalia, where he is introducing and explaining the action of this laxative-tonic formula

PROGRESS ON REA PROJECT IS GIVEN IN REPORT MADE

Meeting Called For Wednesday Night For County Members

At the meeting of the board of directors of the Central Missouri Electric Co-operative Friday morning, a progress report was made of the Rural Electrification Project in Saline and Pettis counties.

Five hundred seventy-five Saline and Pettis County farmers paid memberships and signed applications for electric service in the project. Three hundred twenty-one of these were in Saline County and 254 in Pettis County.

E. E. Karns, of examining division of the REA., complimented the board and the committees on the progress they had made the last three weeks. Mr. Karns indicated that a project of 289 miles of electric current would be approved with some additional applications in the area that had been worked. This means that approximately 300 additional applications are needed to give an average of three customers per mile.

Deadline Sept. 17

Mr. Karns set the deadline for accepting applications for the project Saturday morning, September 17, at 10:00 o'clock.

J. R. Eustin of the Capital Engineering Company, engineer on the project, was instructed to complete the preliminary engineering work at that time and submit it to the REA, for approval.

John M. Sneed of Sedalia was selected by the board as co-ordinator of the project. Mr. Latimer of Saline County was selected to work with the committees completing the survey. Both Mr. Sneed and Mr. Latimer will spend the next week with the various committees in assisting them in securing applications and memberships.

Those desiring to sign applications for electric current may contact Mr. Sneed, Mr. Latimer, or any of the following solicitors in the field:

George Callis, Tom Yount, William Curran, Jas. W. Stephens, J. A. DeJarnette, E. R. Thomson, R. W. Dow, J. L. McCurdy, Charles Brandhorst, Thos. J. Raines, William Brandhorst, Roy Taylor, George Walk, Emmett Shantz, George Murphy, Bruce Claycomb, P. S. Read, Edgar Durley, R. W. Rissler, W. W. Howe, E. R. Kerfoot, J. C. Longan, Theodore Mergen, R. S. Haggard, Elmer Alderman, Granville Thompson, Leonard Ragar, Clarence H. Williams, Fred Brockman, Edward Heffernan, L. R. Mahnken, C. J. Wheeler, Milton Mathews, Jas. P. Higgins, Virgil Ragar, Walter T. May, Minta Bowlin, John T. Harris, Jr., Russell Lewis, Das R. McClure, Milton J. Smith, Stephens McClure, Parke Green, Jim Harvey.

Mr. Karns definitely emphasized persons desiring electric current must have their applications in by next Saturday if they are to be accepted.

He further pointed out that no individual member of the Co-operative has any individual responsibility other than the $5.00 membership fee and paying for energy used. He further emphasized that the minimum monthly bill of $3.25 per month after the current is available will pay for 40 kilowatt hours of current, which for the average family of five is sufficient current for lights, iron, washer, and radio. The monthly bills will be used by the Co-operative to pay the loan, interest, taxes, depreciation and maintenance, insurance, purchase of energy and administrative expenses.

Meeting Is Called

Thos. J. Raines, chairman of the board of directors, has called a meeting of the Pettis County members for Wednesday night, September 14, at 8:00 p. m., assembly room, court house, Sedalia. All persons who have signed applications for membership in the Co-operative and all others interested in electric current are invited to attend. A report will be made as to the status of the project and final plans made for completing the securing of applications before the dead line on Saturday morning, September 17.

might threaten the peace of all Europe.

He pleaded with the people to "be calm" and pledged the government to work for justice for all nationalities.

"If imperialist powers were to enter into relations between the nationalities," he said, "a regretable shadow would be thrown over the future of cooperation among them.

"I believe the German people as well as the Czechs, Slovaks and all the others truly desire to work together in quiet."

The president's address came shortly after negotiations between the government and the Sudeten Germans over the latter's autonomy demands were reopened after a three-day interruption.

Speaking also just two days before Chancellor Adolf Hitler of Germany closes the Nazi party congress in Nurnberg with an important address, Benes emphasized Czechoslovakia wanted peace and would do all she could to promote faith and good will among nations.

Referring to the government's newest proposals to meet the Sudeten German demands, which include among other things self-governing districts, Benes declared:

"These are elaborated in order to give to the state what belongs to the state and to the nationalities what belongs to the nationalities.

"At the same time we are endeavoring to guarantee the individual against the whole, minority against majority and freedom of thought and national rights.

"This applies to Czechs, Germans, Slovaks, Hungarians, Ruthenians and Poles. Our democratic conditions make us proceed in this manner."

After today's negotiations Premier Milan Hodza was believed to be more optimistic, although no definite information of the course of the conference was given out.

Negotiations had been broken off last Wednesday after disorders at Maehrisch-Ostrau.

The president declared the government was striving to give justice to all the people in Czechoslovakia and said:

"We wish to contribute to a settlement of European problems in general and to the establishment of good relations with all our neighbors, especially with greater Germany.

"We wish to prove to Europe and America and particularly England and France that we understand our responsibilities for general collaboration and that we fulfill these as far as the needs of the state allow us."

FOOTBALL PROSPECTS FOR SMITH-COTTON ARE BRIGHT

SIX FULL TEAMS REPORT DURING THE FIRST WEEK

Team Is Three Deep In Mast Positions; Line Is Tentative

VETERANS RETURN TO THE BACKFIELD

Tigers Will Open Season At Marshall In Game With Owls

The past week has been a busy one for Smith-Cotton high school sports department, and Coach Donald Davenport is very enthused over the prospects of a good football squad for the 1938 season. Progress has been exceptionally well for the youthful students of the gridiron in the first five days of hard labor.

There are nearly six teams in constant play on the gridiron during the week, sixty-five boys having been furnished suits and have remained in the swirl. Although the usual large number of early try-outs were in for the practice, but hot weather, others who obtained after-school jobs and so-on have dropped from the roll, and in their place a few have asked for the places.

Three centers were in line for the first squad the past week with Raymond Morgenstern, Kenneth Dick and Jack Van Dyne, however, the latter two dropped from the roll during the week and now the coaching staff is whipping into line three recruits, Jimmie Gardner, Kenneth Meints, and Charles Dowdy. Dowdy is a brother of Leonard Dowdy, outstanding athlete of the high school several years ago, being a football, basketball player and a member of the track team of which he was a quarter-miler yet to be equalled. If brother Charles lives up to brother Leonard, he will be some boy.

One of Best Squads

Davenport and his assistants, Joe Benson and Jimmy Obermiller are shaping up one of the best squads the local school has had for years.

Guards, we have Bob Wild, Marion Meyers, Bob Blaschke, James Bennett, with several more to move in.

Tackles, there is plenty of competition, Charles Green, Edwin Brown, David Pierce and Jack Devine.

The boys battling for end positions are: Roswell Beach, Ray Rayl, Alvin Meints, D. Carver, Cliff Logan, and Kennth Meints is also taking his turn here as well as at center.

All line positions are merely tentative and there may be some shifting of the players as nothing can stop the youngsters from battling last year's material for those positions.

In the backfield Coach Davenport has several lettermen back who are fighting to hold on the squad, Cecil Hill, Frank Ellis, Tommy Sanders, while as yet Connie Michaelis has not reported but is expected to make a try to overcome his injury of last year. Youngsters who want to and are showing up well for the backfield are Randall Scott, Ted Ellis, Charles Jones, Jack Woods, Jimmy Meyers, Clayton Morris, Petie Courtney and Lawrence Sullivan.

Outstanding Players

Morris and Ted Ellis are the outstanding players of the latter group and are learning fast. Their trouble at present is in handling the ball being responsible for all thumbs in fumbling.

The big problem of the coaching staff is in making the proper positions for the boys and the making of defensive guards.

Davenport reports the promise, of several good booters, but does not have anything to speak of at present in the passing department. These are expected to be developed as the material is on the roll.

The past week practices have been cut rather short, only from 3 until 6 o'clock, due to the extreme hot weather, but as yet the boys have not shown any signs of letting up regardless of the weather conditions. No serious injuries have been had among the players, only the customary bruises which go along with football. Much credit is due the new equipment given the football department by the board of education, to which the boys have expressed their gratefulness

Veterans Return

The number one, two teams are mostly boys back from last year and the year before, while three, four and five teams are composed of boys who reported for spring training and are showing up well. There is plenty of size in the material, although they lack so much football experience, which is to be developed by September 30 when the first game of the season will be played.

Marshall Owls at Marshall will be the first game of the season for the Tigermen and Davenport intends to take as many players on the trip as possible.

ST. PAUL CLINCHES ASSOCIATION FLAG

ST. PAUL, Sept. 10.—St. Paul clinched the American Association pennant by defeating Kansas City 3 to 2 in a 12-inning first game of a doubleheader today. Kansas City came back to win the second game, 5 to 2, and thereby clinched second position over Milwaukee.

The Saints held their four-game lead by splitting the twin bill and have only two games left with the blues here Sunday.

DIXCELS TO PLAY AT WINDSOR TODAY

The Dixcel Oil club today will go to Windsor this noon where this afternoon they will play the strong 75-Million Club. It will be recalled the Windsor club lost to the Sedalia A's here recently in a most exciting game in which there was also some dispute as to whether the Sedalians were entitled to the game.

The Oilers hope to place the 75-Million club on the losing side of the fence in today's effort. It will be their first game in four weeks.

"Lefty" Carpenter will be on the mound for Windsor with Ferguson catching. Sullivan, big right hander for the Oilers, will be on the firing line for them with Omar Simon handling the work behind the bat. "Ted" Simon and Paul Mines will be in readiness for relief pitching duty. Others of the Oilers to make the trip include: McFatrich, first base; Lobaugh, second base; Walker, short stop; Taylor, third base; Knoup, left field; Barge, center field; Kaullen, right field. Manager Siegel will be in charge.

SAM SNEAD LEADS GLEN FALLS OPEN

GLENS FALLS, N. Y., Sept. 10.—Blazing home with a sizzling second round 66, six under par, Sam Snead of White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., snared the halfway mark lead in the $4,000 Glens Falls golf open today with a 36-hole aggregate of 137.

Snead was three strokes in front of Frank Moore of Mamaroneck, N. Y., who added a fine 69 to his first round 71.

Bracketed in third place at 141 were Jack Patroni of Shawnee-On-Delaware, Pa., and Eddie Schultz of Troy, N. Y.

Five blows behind the leading Snead, were Tony Manero of Peabody, Mass., Jimmy Hines of Great Neck, L. I., and Gene Sarazen, Brookfield Center, Conn.

Bobby Alston of Ottawa, Ont., Gene Kunes of Itasco, Ill., and Felix Serafin of Clarks Summit, Pa., shared eighth place with scores of 143, a stroke ahead of blond Craig Wood of Rumson, N. J., and Harry Nettblebladt of Farmington, Mass.

Sixty one golfers who had 154's or lower qualified for the final 36 holes tomorrow.

Short Briefs on Big Six Football

COLUMBIA, Mo., Sept. 10.—(AP)—Some 50 University of Missouri football men sweltered through two practice sessions today, their first of the 1938 season.

Loosening-up exercises and punting, running and ball handling exercises without shoulder pads or heavy sweat-shirts were the day's fare.

All 14 returning lettermen were on the field today except Les Pieper, St. Louis, who Coach Don Faurot said would be here Monday.

LAWRENCE, Kas., Sept. 10.—(AP)—Coach Ad Lindsey said today three of 20 Kansas University football lettermen expected to return this fall would not be back.

Lindsey opened the fall practice with blocking, charging and tackling, then took up running plays and signal drill.

MANHATTAN, Kas., Sept. 10.—(AP)—Kansas State football men plunged into advanced work under a beating sun today—running, blocking and kicking. Coach Wes Fry said fundamentals and conditioning will occupy little time this season.

LINCOLN, Neb., Sept. 10. — From appearances you'd think it was a track squad Coach Lawrence M. "Biff" Jones had out today for the inaugural of football practice at the University of Nebraska.

About 50 Cornhusker athletes worked out this morning and again this afternoon in track suits, and football shoes. The mercury zoomed up into the 90's, and poundage melted away with the heat.

Notice: Beginning Monday I will be located at my old stand at the Bothwell Barber Shop. A. R. Bowmer.—Adv.

BROMWICH HARD PRESSED TO WIN OVER SHIELDS

National Singles Tourney Advances to the Fourth Round

FOREST HILLS, N. Y., Sept. 10.—(AP)—For two sets and the better part of two hours today big, broad-shouldered Frank Shields had the secret, the strokes and the stamina with which to beat John Bromwich, the two-fisted Australian who stands at No. 1 on the foreign seeded list in the men's national singles tennis championship. But they weren't enough. Bromwich won, 1-6, 10-12, 10-8, 6-2, 6-2.

At the end of those two sets the 27-year-old former Davis cup star had a 6-1, 12-10 lead over the 10-year-old youngster every one expects to see in the final with Don Budge. He had those two sets, he still had the secret and he still had the will, but Frank no longer had either the strokes or the stamina.

Bromwich took the third set on a service break in the final game, where Shields committed three errors. That was the last gasp by this amazing young man who has spent many more hours in night clubs than on the practice courts in the last year. After the intermission Bromwich breezed through the final sets for the match.

Shields' showing was more surprising than any other development of a day in which eight players came through to the fourth round in the lower half of the men's draw and eight to the third round of the upper half in the women's.

With Bromwich advanced Frankie Parker, 1937 Davis cupper who next tackles the Australian; Joe Hunt of Los Angeles; long-legged Yvon Petra of France; Franjo Juncec of Yugoslavia and Gene Mako, Budge's doubles partner, who hit a sound singles streak to upset sixth-seeded Frank Kovacs; Gil Hunt of Washington, D. C., and Bobby Riggs of Chicago. They are paired in the order named.

Helen Jacobs, first-seeded and seeking her fifth title, led the feminine survivors, who also included Margot Lumb of England, Helen Pedersen of Stamford, Conn., Nancy Wynne of Australia, Gracyn Wheeler and Mme. Rene Mathieu of France.

OLYMPIC CHAMP SUED FOR DIVORCE

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 10.—(AP)—Glenn E. Morris, 1936 Olympic decathlon champion and now a film "Tarzan," was sued for divorce today in superior court by Charlotte Morris. She charged he was "critical and cruel" and at times "abusive."

On two occasions, the wife complained, Morris blackened her eye, and on another banged her head against the door of their car and rendered her unconscious.

The complaint alleged Morris earned $18,000 in 1937. The wife asked $2,000 attorney's fees and $700 monthly alimony. They were married in 1936 and separated August 28, last.

BALLOONS TO AIR SUNDAY IN RACE

LIEGE, Belgium, Sept. 10.—(AP)—Nine balloons will take the air tomorrow in the International James Gordon Bennett race.

With the United States, Germany and Czechoslovakia—all strong contenders in the past—not entered, the favorite was Ernest De Muyter of Belgium, winner of the last two races.

Belgium and Poland each have entered three balloons, France two and Switzerland one.

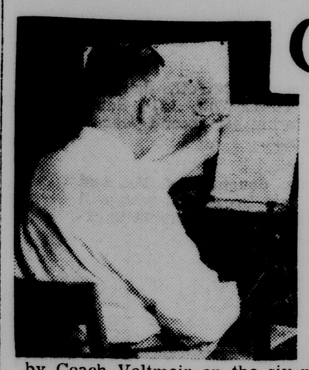
SCRUTON'S

SPORT SCRAPS

SINGLES—DOUBLES—TRIPLES



CENTRAL MISSOURI'S chances of having a six-man football conference is a little doubtful at the present time but there are possible chances there will be such a conference in Pettis County. County high schools have an conference with the help of Coach Voltmeir of the Central Missouri State Teacher's College at Warrensburg if they so desire his assistance.

Friday night the annual "Rules Meeting" for all high school coaches in this section was held at Warrensburg at which time not only the eleven-man football rules were discussed but a talk was given by Coach Voltmeir on the six-man game.

At this time he told all the coaches of the larger schools that if they desired some help in organizing six-man football along wth their regular teams, he would send a team from the Teachers College to any school and give them an exhibition. Furthermore he encouraged the larger school coaches to talk with the county high school superintendents, principals and coaches and interest them in the game.

As was told in last week's column the rules are very similar to that of the eleven-man game. There is one exception and that is the passing of the ball. When the center fires the ball to a player he cannot cross the line of scrimmage and must make a pass to some other player. According to Coach Voltmeir this puts plenty of action into the game.

Any coach in the county interested in making inquiry of the six-man football can obtain plenty of information from Coach Davenport at the Smith-Cotton High school or from Coach Voltmeir at the Teachers College.

Football is well underway at Smith-Cotton High School, and Coach Davenport is more than pleased with the cooperation shown him and his coaching staff, Joe Benson and Jimmy Obermiller. The players who are fighting for the first squad positions are showing more interest in the game than any group of players that have been on the gridiron of the local school in several seasons.

The fact new equipment has been furnished the players by the School Board at a cost of more than $500, the boys have reaped much enjoyment out of it. Less injuries have occurred. In fact, nothing of a serious nature has developed other than the usual bruise or two. The new equipment gives the players more protection.

Old rivalry will be had in the opening game of the Sedalia Tigers. The lay off of nearly six years of the Tigers-Owls of the Marshall High school has made a long break in the schedule of games, but again meeting of these two teams should revive the rivalry to a hot pitch.

Allbis poured between the two schools year after year after their games nearly six years ago until the "rib" was put on both schools as to why they didn't meet. The local sports editor was informed the Tigers didn't wish to play Marshall, then the local coach informed it was the Owls, resulting in correspondence between the two schools and the game of 1938 scheduled.

L. A. Van Dyke, then principal of the Smith-Cotton High school, in January of this year, fired the first letter to W. H. "Bill" Lyons of Marshall to which Mr. Lyons readily responded with an acceptance, and the only date available was September 30, and beginning at that time the old contest of Marshall vs. Sedalia will again be on. We hope for years to come.

So many inquiries have been received as to the identity of the two fishermen in last week's column I desire to inform the dear sporting public. The long distance traveler was none other than James Oliver Latimer, while the second fisherman who forgot everything including his fishing tackle and-so-forth is Lester V. Estes who has returned but reported a favorable trip on borrowed tackle and pole.

Mr. Potts Evans, Mr. Don Salmons and Mr. Tommy Delph, it still isn't too late for the OLD TIMERS gaseball game. Let's get it underway and have a night session before the whole season is lost.

TWO NAMED IN ROADS CAMPAIGN

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., Sept. 10.—E. J. McGrew of Lexington has been named director of the speakers' bureau and former Lieut. Gov. E. H. Winter of Jefferson City will be chairman of the publicity committee in the state-wide campaign for Proposition No. 6—the proposed new ten-year road program—which will be voted on at the November election, it was announced here today by the Citizens' Road Association.

Mr. McGrew is a former member of the state highway commission, and was state campaign chairman of the good roads proposition submitted to the voters in 1924.

Mr. Wintor, who is a former president of the Missouri Press Association, has been a leader in the good roads movement for many years. Before his term as lieutenant governor, he was speaker of the house of representatives, and was a member of the roads committee of the house for several sessions.

Proposition No. 6 is an amendment to the state constitution, providing for improvement of the highway system, for the liquidation of outsanding road bonds, and the stabilization of highway building on a "pay-as-you-go" basis. It fixes the gas tax at 3 cents—a 1-cent increase—and prevents any further increase in the tax for ten years.

EXPECT ONE OF BEST YEARS FOR GOLDEN GLOVES

Champions of Last Season Begin Training For Matches

BOXERS WILL BE IN BETTER CONDITION

Interest In Amateur Boxing Is Increasing In This District

Sedalia's prospects for the annual Golden Glove Tournament which is sponsored by the Sedalia Democrat-Capital, appear to be the best that have been out in the three years such amateur boxing has been enjoyed by the followers of that sport in Central Missouri.

More interest has been developed among the youth of Sedalia through the success of the gloves last season, and to date more than forty boys have filled in application blanks and have received their waiver cards to be properly signed.

Champions of 1938 are beginning to request their applications and Saturday one of the outstanding champions entered, Ray "Mike" Hughes, who won the welterweight championship (147-pound class) informed The Democrat and Capital he would begin his workouts Monday night. Hughes, in filling out his card indicated he was no longer a welterweight but because of his increased weight he will fight in the middleweight class (160-pound).

It will be recalled that Hughes fought his way past the two Martin brothers, Walter and Ramond to win the title of Central Missouri, but when he went to Kansas City he lost. His loss was not entirely because of "Hughes," but because he had to be worked down to make his weight

Was "Sweated" Down

In Kansas City "Mike" after being run for more than an hour, failed to lose the necessary pounds to qualify for the welterweight class, and he was then given a "sweating" which put him in such a weakened condition he was unable to withstand the fighting of his opponent that night and he lost a game fight.

Remembering his experience of the 1938 Tournament of Champions in Kansas City, Hughes will work into condition and will now have to lose only four pounds. His weight to date is 165.

The workouts are beginning to get a little more tougher than they were a few weeks ago, inspite of the terrible heat. The boxers who have been working out regularly for the past month are now in condition to go into harder training, and they are displaying much improvement.

Cecil Landers, the outstanding 112-pounder of last year will probably have to enter into the 118 pound class, although he insists by the time "fighting season" arrives he will be back down from his present 120 pounds to 112. Landers was the champion of the latter class this year.

Dean Murray, who suffered gunshot wounds last Labor day night, is improving and he is expected to be able to begin training again. Dean will fight in the 118-pound class this year.

Displayed Talent

Denver L. "Buck" Miller, who displayed some championship talent last season but who was defeated by Landers in one of the greatest fights of the local tournament, has not reported for his workouts to date but indicated he would begin this week. Miller has wonderful prospects if he takes his training more seriously.

Pete Vinson, well known twirler for the Bear Cats, reported for workouts the past week and entered into the lightweight class (135 pounds), and his form is that of a natural. Vinson is expected to make a showing in the gloves this season.

The Martin brothers, both who are welterweights, are working out regularly this year and will be plenty of competition for others who get into the rank.

Lawrence N. Englund, coach and trainer of the boys working out at Fire Station No. 2, will begin to have his hands full the three nights of training, Monday, Wednesday and Friday of each week.

NATIONAL AMATEUR TO BEGIN MONDAY

OAKMONT COUNTY CLUB, OAKMONT, Pa., Sept. 10.—Some 160 of the country's finest shotmakers start Monday in pursuit of the national amateur golf championship held by Omaha's famed Johnny Goodman.

The field is faced with a terrific task against par for the battlegrounds is tough, old Oakmont which never has been consistently conquered. It was here the great national open field of 1935 blew up so completely the unknown Sam Parks, Jr., a local pro, was able to win the crown with a 299 total for the 72 holes.

Though the title seemed sewed up by a coterie of 20 leading stars, including such Walker Cup players as Goodman, Charley Yates, Johnny Fischer, Bud Ward, Reynolds Smith, Fred Haas, and Ray Billows, the race looked all over like a mad scramble for the 18-hole qualifying tests Monday and Tuesday to the finish Saturday afternoon. Goodman, twice a finalist before he defeated Billows 2-up to take the championship at Portland, Ore., last year, naturally was the closest thing to a favorite.

YOUNG SEDALIAN IN U. S. NAVY WRITES OF VISIT MADE TO RIO DE JANEIRO

Writing to his grandmother, Mrs. William Owens, of 1803 S. Ohio avenue, with whom he made his home, following the death of his parents, Wilbur B. Pugh, with the aviation branch of the United States navy, tells of a visit to Rio de Janeiro, where he was on board the naval vessel, Enterprise.

The young man is a graduate of Smith-Cotton high school and enlisted in the navy for four years' service.

From Rio de Janeiro he will go to Cuba for nine days and later return to Norfolk, Va.

In his communication he says:

"We are seeing things in a big way. This is one place a sailor can go ashore and not get soaked for things just because he is supposed to be rather carefree with his money. Our dollar is worth twenty to one compared with Brazilian money. While you can spend plenty, even with so good an exchange, things are almost unbelievable to anyone back home. We can ride clear across the city of 2,000,000 people on street cars, or busses, for about four cents of our money. A cup of coffee is about two cents in our money. The people here go in for their coffee like we would go in for a malted milk or a fountain drink. They have two ways to serve coffee. The natives drink theirs black in a little cup that is about the size of a little toy china set (doll cups). They roast it so it is given a rather burnt and strong taste. The other way is mostly for tourists and those who do not like it so strong. The cup is a regular size teacup with half black coffee and half hot milk. Their sugar looks like our powdered sugar, but isn't quite as sweet. Tiny little spoons are used to stir the coffee.

"Language used is Portuguese. There are a lot of foreigners here with private interests. They have good air mail service to all parts of the world leaving Rio twice a week. Steamer mail leaves every Thursday. At a hotel where we spent our first night ashore the cost in our money, $1.25, included room, a dinner at 8 p. m. on the top floor, thirteenth, or roof garden, where one could get a good view of the lights of the city and harbor. Our meal started off with a bowl of soup, plate of fish, French rolls, milk or coffee, butter, a plate of French baked chicken with peas and carrots, French fried potatoes with steak and ice cream for dessert. It was served in courses.

"I've been ashore three different times and will go two more before we leave for Guantanamo bay, Cuba. I've been on two tours, one up to "Sugar Loaf" mountain, which rises 1,300 feet from the entrance to the harbor. You go up by cable car (suspension).

"The car is built more on the order of the old goat type street cars and holds eighteen people. It takes about 25 minutes to reach the top and you can really get a beautiful view of the surrounding country. The other trip was by ferry to the second largest island within the harbor. There are over 100 islands within it so you can imagine its size. The harbor is supposed to be the most beautiful in the world and the island visited was the most picturesque in the group, eight miles long and four [illegible] trip took one and a half hours by ferry. On the island there were no street cars, or busses, so one rode around in a hack drawn by two horses.

"Returning to Rio I took a bus ride across the city to Copacabana Beach and the casino. (Lots of money being gambled there). Tomorrow I visit Carcovodo Peak, highest around here, where a large marble statute of Christ overlooks the city. It can be seen coming into the harbor twenty miles out from the city. At night it is illuminated.

"I have some swell souvenirs I'll be bringing home with me when I come.'

The Householder's Dilemma: Proper Ventilation all Year

(This is the third and concluding article by Dr. Fishbein on the relation between housing and health.)

* * *

In the summer there is no question that air cooling and dehumidification, or removal of moisture from the atmosphere, contribute a great deal to comfort and efficiency. For many persons the cost of artificial cooling of the air is still too high for routine usage. Insulation of buildings, awnings on the sunny side, and the circulation of cool night air by the use of open windows will frequently substitute for artificial cooling, except when there are long hot spells.

Dr. C. C. Yaglou of the School of Public Health of Harvard University recommends exhaust fans for the attic as a means of cooling homes in the hot season. Such a fan may be started after sunset; air may be drawn through the first story windows in the early evening, and through the second story during the rest of the night. Thus one will begin with a cool house in the morning and insulation will keep the inside temperature below that of the outside air, if windows and blinds are kept shut.

A comfortable house temperature in summer varies from 70 degrees F. to 85 degrees F., according to the temperature outside. In summer, we become adapted to warm weather, we wear thinner and fewer clothes, and we do not require an exceedingly cooled atmosphere for comfort.

In cold weather the average home has a great deal too much leakage of air from the outside to require artificial ventilation. Indeed, the effort in cold weather is to prevent such leakage.

* * *

Leakage can be reasonably prevented by the use of weather stripping, storm sash, and storm doors. Under such circumstances, leakage will be reduced about one-half. This will still provide enough ventilation in a home of ordinary size.

Kitchens, however, must be ventilated separately to remove the odor from cooking, to remove excess heat, and to remove the excess moisture which arises from steam evaporation of water. For kitchens, experts in ventilation recommend now the use of an exhaust fan attached to a wall opening near the ceiling or to the upper half of a window, as near as possible to the stove.

Finally, good ventilation provides for prevention of smoke, dust, and gasses in the air. In cities these may be a hazard to health, though there seems as yet no conclusive evidence to show direct damage to health from such causes. Studies are now being made in many places to determine just how far smoke, dust, and gasses in the air may be health hazards.

It is also important to remember that regardless of the nature or construction of a home, babies, very old people, and those who are ill may require extra heat. The best method of providing such heat is by the use of the small portable electric heater. This will provide the heat where it is needed, and avoid general overheating of the atmosphere and of others who live in the home.

Tests made in 1935 showed that trees vary considerably in their efficiency as windbreaks along highways. In certain cases, hard maples actually increase the wind velocity in the middle of the road.

When a baby eel is a few inches long it is as flat-shaped as a piece of ribbon.

• RAISING A FAMILY

Parent Is Responsible For Child's Vandalism

A very angry lady went to the school authorities because a path was worn across her lawn at the corner. It saved the youngsters about ten seconds to make a hypotenuse instead of a right angle to and from school. No matter how she planted the "point," the young herd found a way to outwit her.

She didn't believe the principal when he explained that he had no power over property beyond the school limits, or show much patience when he said he would send a notice to all the room requesting the children to keep to the sidewalk both going and coming to school, but adding that he had no authority to enforce it.

"Well," said she, "when my Walter went to school, I remember very distinctly that you kept him in one day and lectured him for throwing snowballs at a driver."

"I remember it, too," he admitted. "But I did it to save Walter trouble with the police. If he had done any damage there would have been more to it than a little lecture."

"I'm glad to know that," retorted the lady. "It didn't occur to you, I suppose, that I was the one to lecture him."

"Yes, it did," acknowledged Mr. Smith, "but I knew it was the second offense, and I did what any citizen would have done, when parents fail to see the gravity of street offenses. I probably saved you a fine at some future date. Walter had not obeyed you, if you had indeed spoken to him before."

"Well, then, why don't you speak to the children about my lawn? Keep them in or punish them? Isn't that your duty as a citizen, too?"

"If you like. But I am thereby maying myself liable if I begin to take police duties on myself as regards the property of all homeowners in this ward. We warn the children in school not to molest lawns or flowers or mar pavements, and also about throwing refuse where they please. That is a matter between the city and parents themselves. It would be impossible for us to hold court in so many cases, even if it were our privilege to do so."

"I won't pay for my lawn," said the visitor. "Who is going to have it remade for me?"

"Report the matter to parents, or even to a magistrate, furnishing names of offenders. They will have to pay for it. It is their place to train their children to keep off private land. They must stand behind the infractions of their offspring. I am very sorry you've had trouble. There is too much vandalism. I am only explaining that I myself am quite powerless."

Mr. Smith was right. The behavior of children to and from school is our responsibility, mother and dad, ours and ours alone. It may cost a price sometime, if our boys and girls don't listen to our admonishments.

WHEAT ADVANCES AS CORN DECLINES

CHICAGO, Sept. 10.—(AP)—The wheat market's recovery from five-year low levels was continued for a second session today.

Prices rose as much as a cent a bushel at one stage, largely as a result of uneasiness regarding the political situation abroad. Independent strength at Winnipeg, where quotations were two cents higher at one time, also attracted attention inasmuch as Canadian prices have gained twice as much as Chicago values the past two days.

Scattered profit taking and hedging sales kept the upturn in check, however, while short covering and buying through houses with eastern connections held the market fractionally higher throughout the session.

Wheat closed unchanged to ½ cent higher compared with Friday's finish, after reacting fractionally from the day's highs during late trading. Sept. 62⅛c to 62¼c, Dec. 63c to 63¼c. Corn was unchanged to ⅜ cent lower, Sept. 51⅞c, Dec. 49⅞c to 50c; oats unchanged to ⅛ cent up; rye unchanged to ⅜ cent up.

Although financial circles reported less tension over European politics, the Liverpool market continued to advance, gaining ¾ to ⅞ cent, or about as much as expected.

The reduced corn crop estimate and recent damage reports together with receipt of heavy rains that flattened fields in some sections of the belt had little market influence.

Commercial interests were credited with purchasing oats and rye but trading was quiet. Some traders considered oats cheap in relation to other grains. Lake shipment of 21,000 bushels of rye to Canada indicated the market is about on an export basis.

Lard reflected weakness in cottonseed oil.

STOCKS END WEEK ON THE DECLINE

NEW YORK, Sept. 10.—(AP)—The predicted post-Labor day buying burst in the stock market turned out to be a "bust" and the list today ended a generally unsatisfactory week on the downside.

As in the gloomy sessions of the past few weeks, war talk in Europe again took the principal blame for the day's slip-up, although Wall Street, as a whole, continued of the opinion an international upheaval was unlikely, at least for the present.

At any rate, most traders came to the boardrooms for the brief proceedings with the idea of lightning commitments on the theory that "something" might pop abroad over the week-end.

The list loafed until near the start of the second and final hour when a fair-sized volume of selling knocked down leaders fractions to more than 2 points. Offerings dried up soon afterward, though, and light support near the close enabled many shares under water to reduce losses substantially.

Steels, motors and specialties were among the weak ones, but the majority of these about halved declines on the concluding stretch.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was off .6 of a point at 47.2, making the net setback for the week 1.8 points.

Transfers amounted to 416,480 shares, the best Saturday since August 6, and compared with 357,380 a week ago.

Curb prices offered little resistance to selling pressure.

Bonds did a bit better than stocks, being little more than moderately irregular.

ANSWER TO CRANIUM CRACKER

Question on Comic Page

Six dozen dozen gallons in 864 gallons. A gallon of water (liquid measure) is 231 cubic inches. So the water fills 199,584 cubic inches of space.

One-half a dozen dozen gallons of sand is 72 gallons and sand takes up 286.8025 cubic inches to the gallon (dry measure) or 19,353.78 cubic inches in all. 199,584 cubic inches less 19,353.78 cubic inches equals 180,230.22 cubic inches difference. Thus it takes about 10½ times the space.

SOIL TREATMENTS TO CHECK EROSION

No longer is it necessary to leave the thin eroded areas on the farm idle and permit them to further erode away says J. U. Morris, County Extension Agent. By the use of soil treatments of lime and commercial fertilizer they can be made to produce small grains such as wheat, clover and grass profitably.

Mr. Morris states that this fact is proven by a 15 year experiment conducted at the Missouri College of Agriculture. At the beginning of the experiment the surface soil was removed from two of the plots, making them severely eroded. A rotation of corn, wheat, sweet clover, and grass was started on both of the subsoil plots and on an adjoining plot of normal soil. On one of the subsoil plots two tons of limestone were applied and each time the wheat was seeded in the rotation 200 pounds per acre of 4-16-4 fertilizer was applied.

The average yield of grass and sweet clover from the untreated normal soil was only 2,594 pounds while on the subsoil plot which received limestone and fertilizer, the average yield of grass and sweet clover was 4,230 pounds per acre. The average yield on the untreated subsoil plot was but 721 pounds per acre In a comparison of wheat yields the treated subsoil plot produced almost as much wheat as the normal plot.

The annual cost of soil treatments on the de-surfaced subsoil plots was less than $3.00 per acre. The treatments resulted in increased yields of 16 bushels of wheat and 1¼ tons of hay and forage per acre over the untreated subsoil plots. This was an excellent return on the investment and in addition reduced erosion caused by the better growth of small grains, legumes and grasses produced as a result of the lime and fertilizer.

KATY PRESIDENT ON INSPECTION TOUR

M. S. Sloan, president of the Missouri-Kansas - Texas railroad, passed through Sedalia late Friday afternoon on his railway motor-car making an inspection trip of the railroad properties. He remained in Sedalia for about fifteen minutes.

Accompanying President Sloan were C. W. Watts, M-K-T., superintendent at Parsons, and Mr. Sloan's secretary. From here they proceeded to Parsons.

He expects to return to Sedalia within a short time for a more lengthy visit with Katy representatives in this city.

Mr. Sloan makes frequent motor car tours chiefly for the purpose of inspecting the roadway and improvement projects at various points, and on them finds time to make a large number of business calls at all of the principal cities, and even at some of the smaller places visited.

FEFT FOOT OF CONDUCTOR JOE SHEPHERD AMPUTATED

Joe Shepherd, conductor for the Missouri-Kansas - Texas railroad, and a former resident of Sedalia, underwent an operation Friday at the railroad hospital in Parsons at which time his left foot was amputated just above the ankle.

It was said he suffered an infection on one of his toes which caused his trouble. He was reported Saturday as resting as well as could be expected.

Mr. Shepherd resides at Parsons.

SPECIAL COUNSEL EMPLOYED FOR SUIT ON BONDSMEN

Lee Montgomery and John T. Martin, members of the law firm of Montgomery, Martin and Montgomery, have been employed by the city as special counsel to cooperate with City Counselor Fred F. Wesner, in the trial of the suit on bondsmen of T. W. Dugan, formerly city collector.

For watch and clock repairing see Butterwick. Now located at 533 E. 5th.—Adv.
